

Toothy Tango: Moving You Towards Healthy Teeth

Get ready to move! This interactive, movement-driven experience includes two exciting, educational games that teach participants principles of good dental health. All interaction occurs via an interactive mat, so players work up a sweat while playing the games.

In "Toothy Treats," participants must navigate through a maze collecting ten healthy foods and drinks before being caught by the sweets.

In the "Attack the Plaque" game, players must brush and floss plaque off the teeth as it forms in different locations before any tooth decays.

Animated content instructs participants on how to play the games while offering additional dental education tips.

"Being a small children's museum with a limited budget, we continuously struggle with affordable ways to implement change, without compromising in both the educational and fun value of new exhibits. We were searching for a new twist to our dental health area, and we were thrilled to find Animocation's Toothy Tango as an option. Julia Griffey was incredible to work with, explaining every aspect of what should be done in order to best utilize the exhibit and our time, from preparing the area to installing the game. This addition to Hands On! has been welcomed by all, and it is a blast to watch people play!"
